TO:

32d Infantry Division Personnel

This book is dedicated to you of the 32d Infantry Division.
Be proud that you are or were a member of the best National Guard
Division in the United States.

In years to come, the memory of your hard work here at Fort Lewis, your disappointments, your heartaches, your funmaking, and your pleasures will diminish. You will look back and find that things weren't so tough after all. There may even be a pang of regret for the "good old days at Fort Lewis".

Then, especially, will you be grateful for having a copy of this wonderful book of memories, in which you can once again relive those "Good old days". In time to come, your children will cherish this book, as will your own immediate family, and perhaps your parents.

This is written with gratitude and heartfelt thanks for helping make the 32d Infantry Division the envy of all Guard units. Good luck and God bless all of you.

MAJOR GENERAL HERBERT A. SMITH

After enlisting as a private in the guard in 1919, General Smith served until moving out of State in 1920. He returned to his homeland and the Red Arrow Division the following year, and was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in 1923.

The next step up the ladder came in 1925 when he was promoted to First Lieutenant. He was elevated to Captain in 1927, to Major in 1937 and to Lieutenant Colonel in August, 1940.

Two months later, on 15 October 1940, General Smith and the 32d Division were federalized in face of the mounting Hitler-inspired crisis overseas. That date was exactly twenty-one years ahead of the current call to arms.

Soon General Smith found himself in the Southwest Pacific, where he served thirty-eight months as a Battalion and Regimental Commander. It was in these campaigns that he distinguished himself as a leader. General Smith's awards included the Silver Star, the Bronze Star Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters, and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

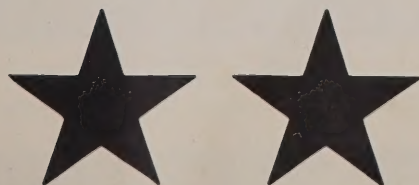

He returned to the United States in June 1945 and spent the next two years as Chief of the Small Arms Committee of the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Georgia.

General Smith rejoined his home state division in 1947, and promptly organized and was placed in command of the 127th Infantry Regiment.

He was federally recognized as a Brigadier General in 1956, and in 1960 was promoted to Major General, his present rank as Commanding General of the 32d Infantry Division. That same year he received federal recognition in the grade of Major General.

In civilian life, General Smith is Superintendent of Mails at the United States Post Office at Oshkosh, Wisconsin, his home town. He is active in the Elks, Masons, American Legion and Rotary.

BRIG GEN F F SCHWEINLER

Soldier and small town newspaperman. Those are the phrases used to describe Brig Gen Francis F. Schweinler, Commanding General, 32d Infantry Division Artillery.

But perhaps the most succinct description of Gen Schweinler is leader. For Gen Schweinler has displayed leadership in carrying out the functions of his chosen endeavors in life.

His military training began with his enlistment in the Red Arrow Division in January 1924. He served continuously until accepting a commission as second lieutenant in 1933. He was promoted to first lieutenant in 1935, and captaincy followed in 1939.

Gen Schweinler was activated in October, 1940, with the Red Arrow Division, and served 18 months in the Pacific as CO of the 806th Tank Destroyer Battalion. His combat achievements won him promotions to major in 1942 and to lieutenant colonel in 1943.

Gen Schweinler was released from active duty in 1946, and was made commander of the 312th Tank Battalion, Officers Reserve Corps. He was commissioned a lieutenant colonel in the Wisconsin National Guard in 1949, and was promoted to colonel in 1956. Effective Nov. 16, 1960 he was federally recognized as brigadier general.

Gen Schweinler believes that no man, after weighing the facts ever would choose a way of life other than that enjoyed in this country.

To this end, and to that of making his countrymen appreciate their homeland to the fullest, Gen Schweinler, as editor of the Mosinee, Wis. newspaper, along with civic leaders initiated "Operation May Day."

On May 1, 1950, the 1,400 townspeople of Mosinee lived under a mock totalitarian dictatorship. An MKVD was set up, and Gen Schweinler used his newspaper to issue scathing denunciations of our democratic way of life. The stunt was carried by wire services and national magazines, and Gen Schweinler feels it served to help wake up the nation to the Communist menace at a time when the threat was minimized.

Such improbable endeavors are typical of Gen Schweinler, who believes that anything necessary is possible. Resourceful and combat skilled, Gen Schweinler plays a key role in the executive branch of the nation's foremost guard unit.

Gen Schweinler, who was born in Neillsville, Wis., in 1906, is married and makes his civilian home in Mosinee.

BRIG GEN JOHN A. DUNLAP

Brig Gen John A. Dunlap, assistant division commander of Wisconsin's 32d Infantry Division, has a military career that spans three decades.

In 1931, he enlisted as a private in the old Brigade Headquarters Battery, 32d Division, Wisconsin National Guard.

Today, he is second in command of the division.

Yet, today there is another Pfc John Dunlap in the division—Pfc John L. Dunlap, 20-year-old son of the assistant division commander, whom the general himself enlisted in the artillery unit in which the Dunlap name started in the division.

The elder Dunlap has a battle record and holds awards typifying the combat expertness long associated with the Red Arrow division.

After serving as an enlisted man for three years, Gen Dunlap was commissioned a second lieutenant in the artillery. He was promoted to first lieutenant in 1937.

Gen Dunlap was elevated to captain in June, 1940, just four months before the 32d Division answered its country's call to arms in the preparedness buildup. When America was attacked, he was with the 121st Field Artillery Regiment.

He was promoted to major in 1942.

Gen Dunlap served his combat time in Africa and Italy, seeing action in the campaigns of Naples-Foggia, Rome-Arno, Northern Apennines, Po Valley, and Etruria-Trieste. His valor won him the Bronze Star, and he has, among other awards and decorations, the European-African-Middle East Campaign Medal, the American Defense Service Medal, and a battlefield promotion from major to lieutenant colonel.

Following World War II, Gen Dunlap returned to the Wisconsin National Guard and the Red Arrow Division to serve as S-3 and executive officer, 32d Division Artillery. He was promoted to colonel in 1950 and was assigned to command the 32d Division Artillery in 1956. He was promoted to the rank of brigadier general two years ago.

In civilian life, Gen Dunlap is chief attorney at the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Milwaukee, a position he has held since 1952.

He holds memberships in the Milwaukee Athletic Club, Military Order of World Wars, Federal Bar Assn., Wisconsin State Bar Assn., and the Cedar Lake Yacht Club.

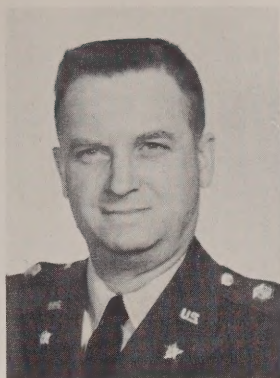

Gen Dunlap makes his home at 5756 N. Kent Ave., Whitefish Bay.

History

General Pershing inspects Guard of Honor during ceremonies at St. Nazaire, France.

The men of the famed 32d Infantry Division, known commonly as the Red Arrow division, have once again been called on to beef up the nation's defense forces.

This call was nothing new to these citizen soldiers.

For as men of the 32d, they face higher standards than most of the country's National Guardsmen, because the history of the division is a story of gallantry beyond the call of duty, performance unmatched by other divisions, devotion to military perfection unusual among citizen soldiers.

Reaching back to its antecedents . . . the Indian Fighters who opened Wisconsin for colonization, the Volunteers who marched off to defend the union in the Civil War, the Governor's Guards who mobilized for the Spanish American War, the tradition for excellence is unbroken.

This is the division whose shoulder patch is the red arrow shot through a line, denoting that it pierced every battle line it ever faced . . . the division in which 6,150 men gave their lives in World Wars I and II . . . the division called "Les Terribles" by the French in tribute to its devastating effectiveness in the first World War . . . the division which spent 654 days in World War II combat . . . more than any U. S. division in any war!

The 32d Division, as such, was first formed in July, 1917, at Camp MacArthur at Waco, Texas, of National Guard units from both Wisconsin and Michigan, some of them dating back to the Civil War.

Its 27,000 men boarded transport ships at Hoboken, New Jersey, in January and February of 1918, expecting to enter immediately the raging battles of World War I as a unit.

But division headquarters landed at Brest, France, and other units debarked at ports spread throughout England and France. The first 13 men of the division to die from enemy action went down with the Tuscania when that ship was sunk by a German submarine.

When the division finally was assembled near Langres, France, for training, it immediately was called upon to provide replacements for other American divisions and to set up labor crews to man the ports. Some 7,000 infantrymen were thus taken from the division before it was permitted to build up to a full-strength fighting division.

This accomplished, the 32d was thrown into the French sector in Alsace with first units hitting the front lines on May 18, 1918.

For the next half-year, the division fought over the trenches, shell-holes, and barbed-wire entanglements in such major offensives as Haute-Alsace, Aisne-Marne, Oise-Aisne and Meuse-Argonne.

The first division to pierce the famed Hindenburg line, earning first from a French General, then from all French troops the fearsome "Les Terribles," the division well earned its line-piercing arrow that since has been its mark of distinction.

In action east of the Meuse, poised for a 7 a.m. attack, the men of the Division were ready to charge into battle again when the war ended November 11.

After serving with the army of occupation, the division arrived home and was demobilized in May 1919, almost two years after it had been activated. A total of 2,915 of its men had died in action, 10,447 had been wounded, but 2,153 prisoners had been taken by the division and it had pierced every line it had faced.

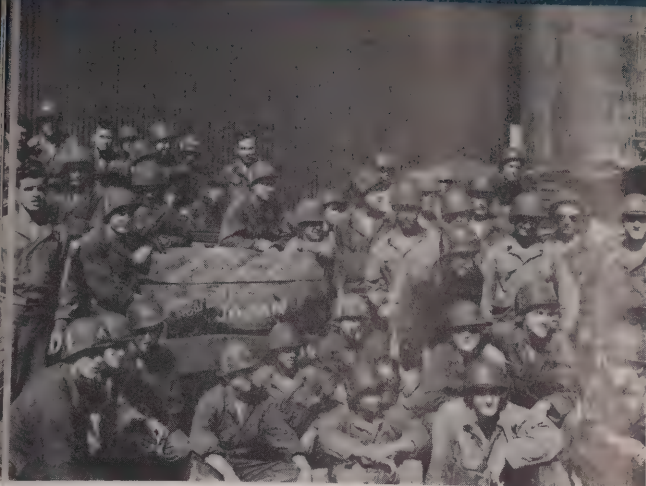

As a peace-time National Guard Division, the 32d remained a joint Michigan-Wisconsin unit between wars, and its famed song reflected, both in music and words, this happy union of military strength:

Red Arrowmen stand ready to surprise German daylight patrols during fighting at strategic point near Gildwiller, Germany on June 27, 1918.

32d Division troops occupy front line trenches at Michelbach Alsace, Germany, June 22, 1918.

"We've been there!"—so say these 32d Division infantrymen as they prepare for duty in Occupied Japan. October 18, 1945

Soldiers of successful 32d Division mission to capture an important position in New Guinea stop to examine Japanese relics.

Look out! Look out!
Here comes the Thirty-Second
The mighty Thirty-Second
The fighting Thirty-Second
Look out! Look out!
They led the way in France
Red arrows never glance
Though hell burn in advance!
Yea! On Wisconsin, On Wisconsin,
Michigan, My Michigan!
We fight for liberty
For justice and equality
We are the Badgers and Wolverines.

On October 15, 1940—23 years to the day after the division was originally formed, the nation again called the 32d to man its defenses. Pearl Harbor was still a year in the future, but the rumblings of war were unmistakable.

The call was the beginning, for the Red Arrow Division, of the greatest test in American military history . . . a test the division passed with flying colors.

First there were monotonous months of training while Hitler's victorious panzer divisions were at the English Channel and Britain's cities were aflame from Nazi bombs. Following maneuvers in Louisiana and the Carolinas, the division put on a final polish at Camp Livingston, La. In mid-February, 1942, the 32d was chosen for shipment to England and was sent to Fort Devens, Mass., to prepare for embarking.

But the Japanese had hit Pearl Harbor, our nation had declared war, and the Red Arrow men were badly needed in the Pacific where it seemed the Japanese had clear sailing to Australia.

The 32d was moved across the continent to San Francisco and left for the South Pacific April 22, the first American division to be moved in a single convoy.

Arriving at Adelaide, Australia, May 14, the division underwent intensive training in jungle warfare at Camp Woodside, Sandy Creek and Cable, near Brisbane.

But the Japanese advance on New Guinea penetrated to within 32 miles of Port Moresby, and training had to be cut short. It was late in September, 1942, and the war in the Pacific had taken a dangerous turn.

On four hours' notice from General Douglas MacArthur, the first elements of the division's 128th Infantry Regiment began an airborne move across the Coral Sea to Port Moresby to start a flank attack against the Japanese who then were battling Australian soldiers in New Guinea.

It was the first airborne movement of infantry troops to a fighting front in United States military history.

And when the 128th Infantry, on September 28, took up the left flank of Allied positions along the Goldie River, defending Port Moresby, it became the first commitment of American infantry troops against the Japanese in the southwest Pacific.

The other elements of the division were rushed to New Guinea both by boat and by air, this time to the Buna area. And the second battalion of the 126th Infantry overcame tremendous odds in the super-human 42-day march across the Owen-Stanley Mountains.

Fighting for Buna-Sanananda was rough, with the Japanese in their coconut-log pillboxes fighting frantically, with weather and insects of all kinds plaguing the men, and with a shortage of both food and ammunition.

Men on the jungle trail in New Guinea.

Red Arrow

Memorial services were held at the American cemetery at Carigara, Leyte Island for 32d Division soldiers who gave their lives in the Leyte campaign. January 12, 1945.

Malaria, chiggers, dengue fever, stifling heat and exhaustion were as much an enemy as were the Japanese. But replacements finally arrived and on January 22, 1943, the 127th Infantry pried out the last of the Japanese at Sanananda, and the division, badly battered, completed its first major Pacific mission, the Buna campaign, and returned to Australia to gather its strength.

Two of the many Wisconsin boys who had given their lives in the bitter struggle were awarded the Medal of Honor posthumously for their heroism at Buna—First Sgt. Elmer J. Burr of Menasha, who had thrown himself on an enemy grenade in order to save the lives of his commanding officer and his buddies, and Sgt. Kenneth Gruennert, of Helenville, who disregarded certain death to destroy a number of enemy pillboxes which were holding up the advance of his unit.

So heavily had the division suffered that it was almost a year before it was back again at the battle-lines.

But on New Year's Day, 1944, the division began a series of leapfrog moves up the coast of New Guinea and finally into the Philippines. On January 2, the 126th Infantry Regiment formed the nucleus of a task force that made a landing on Saidor and by April 14, had cleared out the enemy. Nine days later, division elements landed at Aitape, 300 miles west of Saidor, to be joined by the remainder of the division on May 3.

Maj. Gen. William H. Gill, who had rebuilt the division after Buna, took command of the Saidor task force May 4 for a bloody and ruthless campaign which ended in August with nearly 10,000 Japanese casualties.

It was the greatest casualty list the Japanese had in any southwest Pacific action.

It was in a bitter struggle near Anamo in New Guinea on July 11 that another Wisconsin man earned the Medal of Honor with his death. Staff Sgt. Gerald L. Endl of Janesville staged a one-man counter-attack against the Japanese who were threatening to envelop his company.

By September 15, elements of the division were in action again. The 126th Infantry and the 120th Field Artillery landed as part of a task force on Morotai Sept. 15. The remainder of the division, with its command post, arrived in Hollandia Oct. 1 to train and make ready for the American return to the Japanese-held Philippines. The 121st Field Artillery, which had participated in the Biak landing May 27, was still occupied, and did not return to the division until the 32d reached Leyte.

It wasn't until three weeks after the initial Philippine landing that the 32d Division went into Leyte, but two days after it reached the beach, it had a regiment on the battle line. The remainder of the division was shortly committed along the Pinamopoan-Ormoc highway. In bitter, hand-to-hand combat, the Red Arrow men took Limon and smashed through the Yamashita Line to uphold their line-piercing tradition.

It was 36 days of the toughest fighting in drenching tropical rains and knee-deep mud. And the division accounted for 6,700 Japanese dead . . . complete destruction of the crack Nipponese first division, before the 32d was withdrawn from the fray.

Just 20 days later, 24 January 1945, the division embarked for Luzon on its longest, back-breaking struggle. Arriving 27 January on a line to the east of Lingayen, it cleared the northern parts of Manila and set off up the winding Villa Verde trail which led north of Manila up into the mountains.

Books have been written about this historic struggle upward against an enemy behind each boulder, against Japanese strong points cemented into the caves and crannies.

For 119 consecutive days, the men of the 32d scaled the precipitous Caraballo mountains to outflank the Japanese stronghold at Balete Pass and pave the way for American victory in the Cagayan Valley.

It was a tremendous day . . . 28 May . . . when the 32d, which had taken Imugan, met the 25th Infantry near Santa Fe, securing the pass. But the men were too exhausted to either celebrate their triumph or realize their tremendous contribution to the ultimate Japanese defeat.

In an immediate tribute to the 32d, a bill was rushed into the Philippine Congress to change the name of the bloody Villa Verde trail to the "Red Arrow Trail."

Some 9,000 Japanese had been killed during the division's drive, and more than that were killed in later mopping up activities by some units near Imugan. Some elements moved to rest and rehabilitation centers, but other men of the Red Arrow secured the Gaguio area, wiped out enemy groups in the Agno River Valley area and opened Highway 11 as a supply route.

The war won, the division moved to Japan for occupation duty Oct. 20, and when it was inactivated at Fukuoka 28 February 1946, there were few men present who had answered the 32d's call to duty five and one-half years before.

The division had undergone 654 days of combat—more than 15,000 hours of action in six major engagements and four campaigns.

Its men had won six Congressional Medals of Honor, 157 Distinguished Service Crosses, 49 Legion of Merit awards, 845 Silver Stars, 1,854 Bronze Stars, 98 Air Medals and 78 Soldier's Medals.

And its wounds were heavy. There were 11,500 Purple Hearts for Red Arrow men.

Allied Flag Day parade in Brisbane, Australia

Yet, when the 32d Division was reactivated as Wisconsin's National Guard Division, many veterans of its Pacific warfare rallied to the cause and helped organize the unit as the State's own.

Thus, the 32d again answers the call to duty. With its ranks containing veterans who carried the division's colors into Buna, Saidor, Aitape, Leyte and Iwo Jima, they are here to carry on the traditions of the Red Arrow Division—the unit which pierced every battle line it ever faced.

Units of the 32d Infantry Division participated in a task force training exercise, Bristle Cone, in March 1962, proving their combat readiness. At right, Maj Gen Herbert A. Smith, CG 32d Division, discusses the exercise with Brig Gen John A. Dunlap, Ass't Div Comdr.

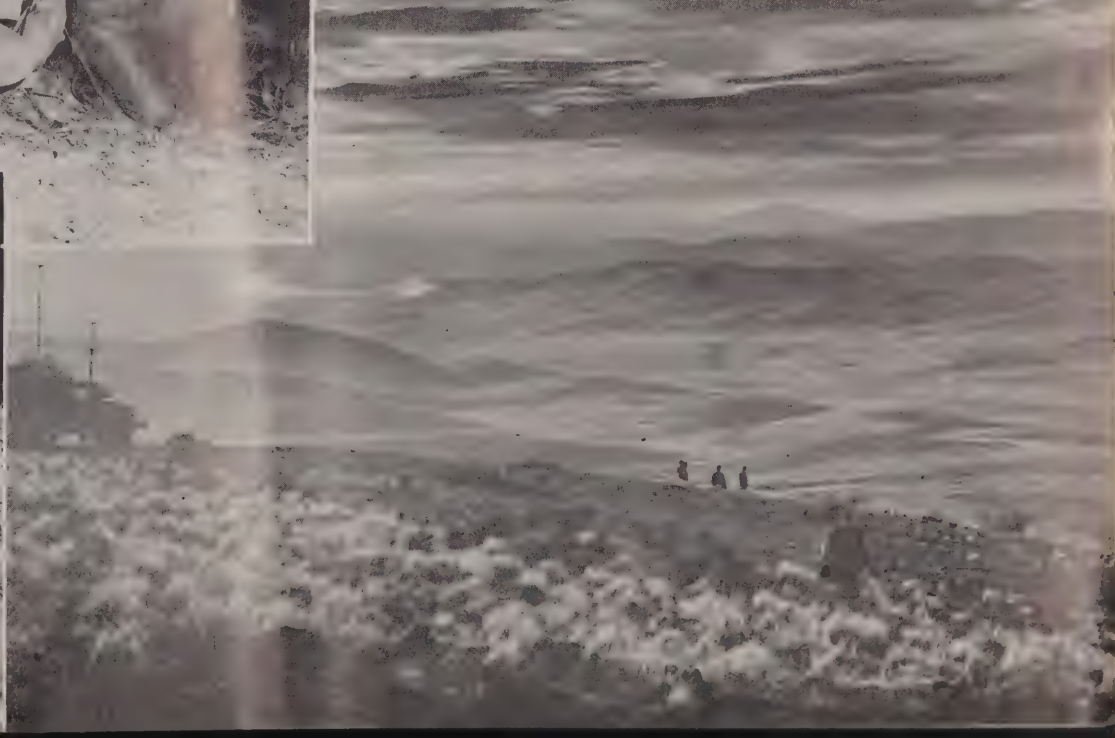

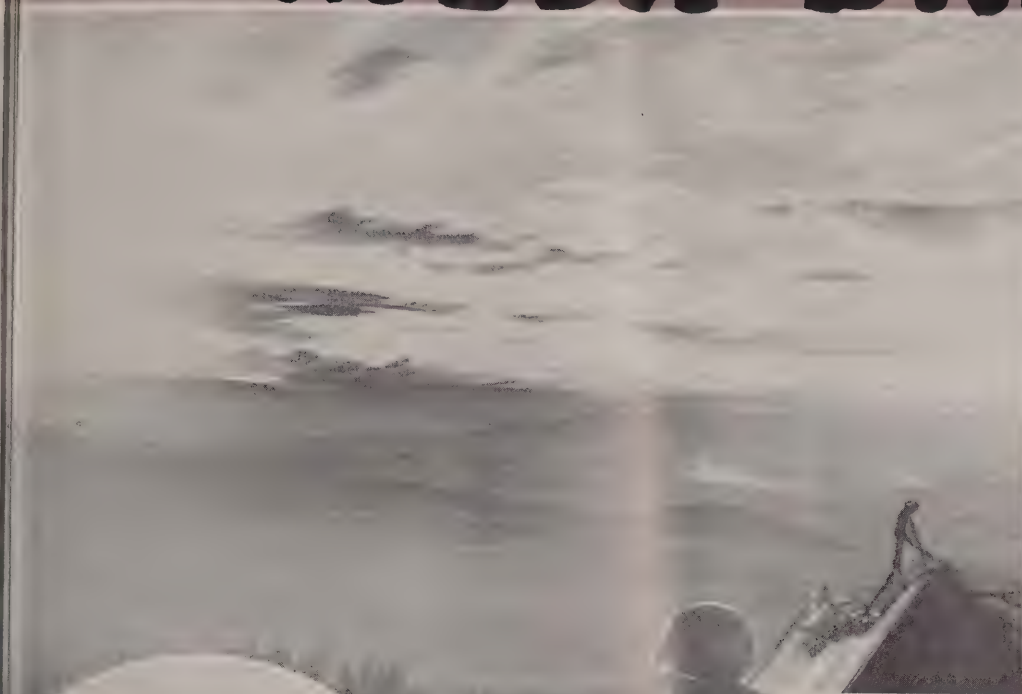

The Colors pass in review during Governor's Day ceremonies at Summer Camp, 1960.

GOOD MORNING

The Berlin Crisis of July-August 1961 was followed by an executive order alerting the 32d Infantry Division for active military service. The word was: Get Combat Ready. It was soon learned that the Red Arrow men were to become a STRAC combat force. Today the 32d is a trained, ready force in being, a weapon in the free world arsenal, with division maneuvers, Bristle Cone and Mesa Drive attesting.

132d SIGNAL BATTALION

The main body of the Battalion arrived at Fort Lewis October 28th During November, the men from Milwaukee and Waukesha began their intensified combat training, but perhaps their biggest job was assimilating the USAR personnel, dubbed "fillers," who ultimately numbered 160, nearly a third of the Battalion's TO&E strength.

A division CPX on 13-15 February ended the first phase of training that had included the infiltration, CBR, and close combat courses, weapons qualification, and MOS training.

A month later a convoy of Signal men left with other elements of the 32d for Exercise Bristle Cone, a desert training operation at Fort Irwin, California. Between 7 and 21 May almost the entire battalion participated in Exercise Mesa Drive at the Yakima Firing Center east of the Cascades.

During this active duty period, the Battalion was commanded by Lt Col Russell K. Sesto; its executive officer was Maj Edward J. Luljak. Hq & Hq Company was commanded by Capt Clifford L. Bergin, B Company by Capt Clayton H. Ploegman. A Company was commanded in succession by Capt Lester C. Biller, 1st Lt Louis E. Stein, Jr., and 1st Lt Edward J. Connell.

724th ENGINEER BATTALION

The life of an army engineer is especially rugged and demanding. Their machinery suggests their mission: bulldozers, road graders, cranes, water purification units, pneumatic float bridges, and many vehicles.

And the mission, for combat engineers, is to support infantry battle groups by building bridges, laying and clearing mine fields, laying protective wire, constructing roads and in any way they can.

The main body of the Battalion arrived at Fort Lewis October 26 and quickly moved into quarters to begin their scheduled year of active duty. Soon processing, physicals and clothing issues were completed and the long hours of training began.

But after months of training, the engineers received a "high excellence" rating on a critical Army Training Test. This led their commander, Lt Col Frank J. Missinne, to comment, "We are ready to carry out our mission whenever and wherever required."

Next came Exercise Mesa Drive, staged at the Yakima Firing Center near Yakima, Wash. The 724th again distinguished itself as capable and ready during the massive, 26,000 man war game. It was the first time since World War II that the Division functioned as a whole—the 724th as an important part.

Lt Col F. J. Missinne, Bn CO and Maj C. H. Schmidt, Ex Off, discuss field training

2d RECONNAISSANCE SQUADRON

105th CAVALRY

Maj DeCremer and Capt Frederikson discuss problem with assistants in the field

The date of 19 September 1961 was the start of a long, eventful change for the men in our Squadron.

The main body arrived at Fort Lewis, Washington by Oct. 27th. Since then, the activities have been many.

Processing and physicals were a must. Individual weapons training was worked in effectively and crew served weapons training was next. The squadron had a move to the Yakima Firing Center for tank firing, field firing, and platoon and troop exercises. And, who among us will forget the return trip on 18 December? Especially Easton!

Our next assignment was furnishing aggressor forces for the five Battle Groups for their FTX's. While this was in the process, plans were drawn and carried out for Tank Force Exercise "Bristle Cone" in California. (REMEMBER the dust storms!)

The big push then was for "MESA DRIVE." This was the big one and we came through with flying colors.

We all thank God that, while we were called for a crisis, we never had to see the world participate in the real thing.

1st MEDIUM TANK BATTALION 105th ARMOR

Units of this Battalion received first word of official call-up notice via radio broadcast at approximately 1000 hours on 19 September 1961. The radio news was followed shortly by the official word, which came in the form of a telegram from the Division Commander, Major General Herbert A. Smith.

At 0600 hours on 27 October 1961, troops on the train carrying the Wausau, Mauston, Tomah, and Arcadia units had hit a 16-ton gravel truck and had pushed it in front of the train for 150 yards killing the truck driver. Although no Guardsmen were seriously hurt, there were a myriad of cuts, scratches, and bruises, several of which required medical attention. Several near brushes with death were related. Later inspection revealed the bodies of three Pullman porters, and the Pullman conductor, all killed when one of the coaches telescoped inside another.

Active duty swung into early high gear with heavy processing schedules. Fillers began arriving in small numbers initially, and became increasingly heavy in the next few weeks.

However, a pat on the back is due the support unit, 1/34th Armor, for the outstanding job they did in cleaning up the buildings and grounds in our Battalion area. Each building had a sign depicting the unit assignment.

It was decided to send the Battalion to Yakima Firing Center for training in early November.

Tank SubCaliber firing took place soon after arrival, followed by service firing of the 90 mm guns. Barracks at YFC proved to be vastly superior to those occupied at Fort Lewis, in that clean tiled floors, hot water, fuel oil heat, spotless modern messhalls, etc. made training life easier to cope with.

After preliminary tactical training and range firing, Tank Company ATT's were scheduled from 25 Jan-17 Feb 62. All Tank Companies received a rating of Satisfactory in the ATT's.

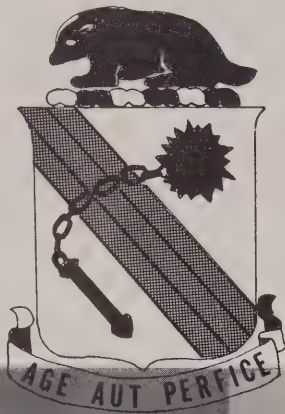

Starting in late March and continuing into April, Tank Companies supported their normal attachment Battle Groups ATT. This involved a week in the field for each company.

This Battalion left for Exercise Mesa Drive (XMD) on 8 May 1962. Co A 1/105 Armor was airlifted as a part of 1/127 Inf, thus becoming the first unit of this Battalion to take part in an airlifted exercise.

As XMD ground to a close, and the rest of the Division got ready to return to Fort Lewis, the Tank Battalion was assigned a police of training areas mission, and then went into an administrative bivouac in the vicinity of Range Central to perform maintenance and prepare for the Battalion ATT, which followed XMD.

The scheduled ATT took place from 12-14 June 1962. This was the final large-scale maneuver for both the Armor Battalion and the Reconnaissance Squadron.

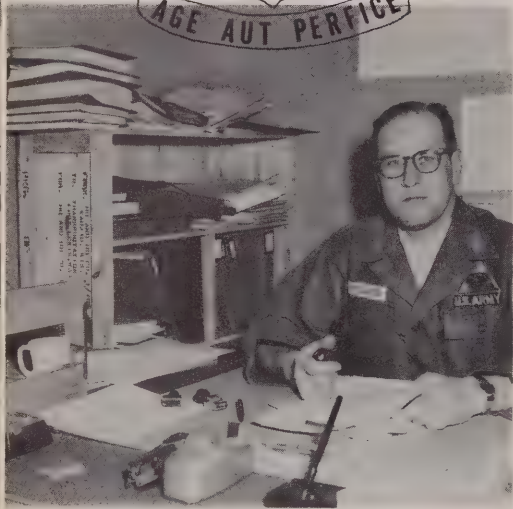

Following the Recon Squadron ATT, units of this Battalion engaged in an extensive program of maintenance designed to get the tracked vehicles of the Battalion in the best possible shape prior to return to home stations.

1st BATTLE GROUP
127th INFANTRY

The commander of the 1st Battle Group, 127th Infantry, a long-time resident of Oshkosh, has seen enough combat and won enough awards to make most regular army men blush with shame.

As captain in command of an infantry company during World War II, Bartels moved with the Red Arrow Division from Australia to the Philippines, fighting in the Leyte, Limon, Yamashita line, Villa Verde and Balete Pass campaigns.

Because of his actions in the Pacific Theater, he received the Silver Star, the Bronze Star, the Combat Infantryman badge and a Purple Heart with three clusters. He was wounded four times.

Bartels joined the National Guard some 28 years ago, because he said, "Many of my friends were members of the Guard and I wanted to serve with them."

His entire military career has been with Wisconsin's 32nd Infantry Division.

Bartels' first unit was located in Oshkosh. Later he was transferred to command headquarters in Milwaukee, then to companies in Appleton and Rice Lake.

After the war he became staff training and operations officer of the 127th Infantry, then took command of a Red Arrow battalion including units from Neenah, Appleton, Marinette, Oconto and Rhinelander, Wisconsin.

Before assuming his present command on 1 July 1959, Bartels was Division signal officer.

How does his present assignment at Fort Lewis compare to previous duty?

"The hospitality extended our people by the civilians and local Army personnel has been extremely notable," he said. "This has been one of the finest receptions we've received."

"Our units were called for the definite reason of showing strength and proving we are a united country," Bartels pointed out. "We did prove through hardships that we retain the principles of sacrifice necessary to present a united front."

In civilian life a technician for the Wisconsin Telephone Company, Bartels attended Oshkosh High School and Oshkosh State College.

The commander married his wife, Agnes, in 1937. Their six children are Mrs. Barbara DiFatta and Mary Bartels of Pacoima, Calif.; Ronald, a student at Oshkosh State College; Theodore, financial secretary of the Oshkosh school board; Steven, and Robert.

ACTIVATION SUMMARY OF THE 1ST BATTLE GROUP 127TH INFANTRY

The 1st Battle Group, 127th Infantry was officially notified of their activation on approximately 25 September 1962. They proceeded to their new home at North Fort Lewis, Washington.

During the first few months at Fort Lewis, the men of our battle group trained in the basic fundamentals of the modern Army concept. Assuming that most of the troopers had already undergone some basic military training, each company began training its personnel.

Aclimating the men to Army life was most difficult. Gathering its strength from every walk of life and area of the country, the battle group began whipping the men into shape by intensifying field maneuvers. During the late winter and the entire spring our men participated in a series of short bivouacs, and longer Army Training Tests involving squad, platoon, company, and battle group procedure. As a climax to our training, the 1st Battle Group was instrumental in the defeat of the Aggressor during the gigantic "Operation Mesa Drive."

Following Mesa Drive, a more relaxed training schedule gave the men a chance to freely tour the Seattle, and Mount Rainier area. Not all was work. Many of our people enjoyed the ski areas so predominantly native to the Washington locale. Fishing, salt and fresh water, offered new challenge to anglers. A plentiful supply of game in the neighboring mountains offered the hunter his paradise. The cordial welcome given by the local inhabitants, and natural setting made the activation an easier burden to carry.

The news of the deactivation was of course the most welcome and awaited announcement. Our battle group was the first to belt line through the out-processing physical and it was a most welcome line to stand in.

Our group departed Fort Lewis, on or about the 1st of August 1962. We were released as a unit to again endeavor to readjust to our former civilian occupations.

Many episodes will be remembered as nightmares, but there will also be ties of friendship which will last longer than bad memories. The 32nd was called to do a job, we feel that we have now completed that job.

2d BATTLE GROUP
127th INFANTRY

DONALD P. RADDE
Colonel
Commanding Officer,
2d Battle Group, 127th Infantry

Col Radde enlisted in the Wisconsin National Guard February 1934 as Private, and advanced successively through ranks to Master Sergeant (64th Brigade Sergeant Major). He entered World War II service 15 October 1940 as Lieutenant, transferred from Headquarters Company, 64th Brigade, to 128th Infantry late in October 1940 and served as Battalion and Regimental Communications Officer, Company Commander, 128th Regimental Operations Officer, and twice on special Brigade Staffs as Operations Officer. Col Radde was released from active duty as major and rejoined Wisconsin National Guard on re-activation of 32d Division as Operations Officer 128th Infantry. He commanded 1st, 2d and 3d Battalion, 128th Infantry, was promoted to Colonel and designated Commanding Officer 1st Battle Group 128th Infantry when the division was re-organized, transferred 1960 to 2d Battle Group, 127th Infantry. He served on active duty 1961-62 as Battle Group Commander and Division Chief of Staff. Awarded Bronze Star with Two Oak Leaf Clusters, Combat Infantry Badge, Presidential Unit Citation, Army Commendation Medal and was graduated from Special Associate Command and General Staff College. He served all enlisted and commission time in all ranks from Private to Colonel with the 32d Division.

2/127th... Job Well Done

Personnel of the 2d Battle Group, 127th Infantry were notified on 19 September 1961 that they would be called to active duty within thirty days for a period of one year. The orders stated that Fort Lewis, Washington would be the active duty station.

All personnel immediately went about putting their personal affairs in order, notifying employers and making arrangements for their families. On 15 October, all personnel reported for active duty to their respective armories in Oshkosh, Plymouth, Ripon, Fond Du Lac and Beaver Dam.

During the next ten days, all personnel were busily engaged in packing equipment, receiving physicals and administrative processing. All vehicles were loaded aboard flat cars and other organic equipment loaded into box cars. On 25 October, trains No. 9 and 12 departed from Oshkosh and Fond Du Lac transporting the Battle Group to Fort Lewis.

The Battle Group arrived at Fort Lewis on 28 October and moved into its new home on North Fort. The unpacking began and the Battle Group settled down to begin its intensified training on 1 November.

The individual training phase lasted three weeks with physical training, bayonet training, first aid and foot marches emphasized. On 20 November, squad tactics training was initiated with the rifle companies training separately and Headquarters and Combat Support Companies undergoing section training.

The squad training was followed by platoon training which ended 13 December with Platoon Army Training Tests. One week later 75% of the Battle Group personnel left Fort Lewis for a welcome two week Christmas leave.

Fresh from their vacation, the men put their two months of squad training and platoon training to use in the company training phase which started on 8 January. Attacks, withdrawals, night training and defensive maneuvers prepared the units for the Company ATT's which were conducted during the period 22-27 January.

15 February was an important date. It was on that date that the 32d Division ended its intensified training program and became a member of the Strategic Army Corps.

Operation BRISTLE CONE was the highlight of the activation. Personnel received desert warfare training in the middle of February. The Battle Group was selected for this maneuver because of the high scores attained in the Company ATT's. The 2/127 received the highest scores of the five battle groups in the 32d Division.

A snowstorm the end of February paved the roads with slush as the vehicle convoys departed for Fort Irwin, California in the Mojave Desert. On 5 March, men of the Battle Group were airlifted from McChord Air Force Base to George Air Force Base and moved by truck from there to the assembly area in Fort Irwin. On 6 March, the Battle Group was closed in and the maneuver started to last until 13 March. The wind and dust will long be remembered as the men of the 2/127 fought and defeated the aggressor forces from the 1st Infantry Division from Fort Riley, Kansas.

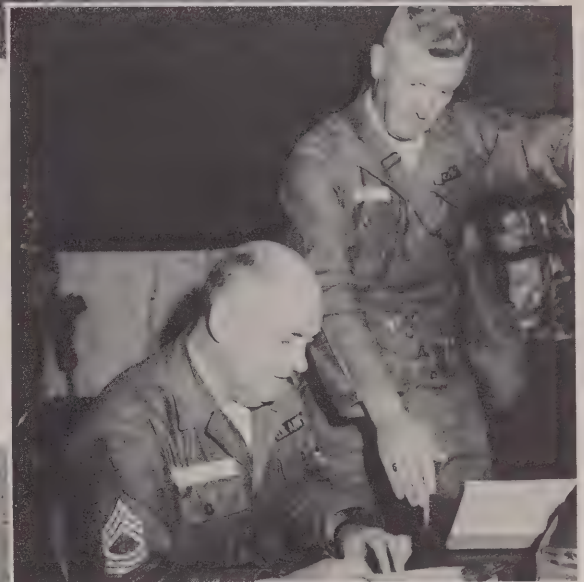

This was the first time the Battle Group operated as a single integrated unit. Many valuable lessons were learned from the exercise and implemented into all subsequent training. The Battle Group received its ATT during the period 9-14 April and did an outstanding job in completing the test.

"LES TERRIBLES" CONTINUE TO MAKE HISTORY

The "Les Terribles" of today, using new ideas, ingenuity and initiative, are molding the 3d Battle Group, 127th Infantry, its pentomic designation, into the vital organization it is. Its Mission—to meet the needs of a future combat ready unit. By establishing and cultivating new traditions for an outfit with a glorious history, these reflect the attitude and temper of the new generation of "Les Terribles" as we know them.

Notification of the call up of the 32d Division including the 3d Battle Group was first seen in the Milwaukee Journal Newspaper published on 20 September 1961. Many individuals heard it on the radio that evening.

The first men of the BG started active duty on September 27 for the purpose of assisting various units in preparation for mobilization. Men were continually added to this number until the various units moved to Fort Lewis.

The 32d Division was ordered to active duty at their home stations on October 15 by general order number 71 from Headquarters 5th U. S. Army dated 27 September 1961.

On October 20 the advance detachment of 2 officers and 28 enlisted men moved by air from Milwaukee to Ft. Lewis. The host unit at Ft. Lewis was 1st BG, 22d Inf, 4th Inf Div.

The movement of the units to Ft. Lewis was as follows: Company E of Jefferson left home Oct 23 by train and arrived Oct 26; Combat Support Company of Hartford, Company C of Watertown and Company D of Oconomowoc, left by train Oct 24 and arrived Oct 26; Company A and B of Milwaukee left by train Oct 25 and arrived Oct 27; and Headquarters Company left Milwaukee by jet air transportation on the 26th of Oct and arrived the same day.

Battle Group Headquarters was closed at Milwaukee, Wisconsin and opened at Ft. Lewis, Washington on Oct 26, 1961.

"Filler" personnel started reporting about the same time that the units got here.

On Nov 17, Lt Gen Ryan, Commanding General of the 6th U. S. Army visited Capt Dittman at the Target Detection and Landscape Firing Ranges.

Capt Richard G. Fuszard, Headquarters Company, and Sgt Charles J. Cantwell, Company D, left Nov 18 for Jungle Warfare Training at Ft. Sherman, Panama Canal Zone.

On Nov 21, Gen James A. Van Fleet, special consultant to the secretary of the Army, visited Co C's 81mm Mortar Familiarization problem, Co D's barracks and Hq Co's mess hall. He was escorted by Maj Gen Smith.

Col Roth S. Schleck left on Nov 26 to attend a weeks course at the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas.

Lt Gen Freeman, Deputy Commander U. S. CONARC, visited the battle group 81mm mortar and machine gun field firing training and Representative Albin O'Konski visited BG Headquarters on Nov 27. Senator Proxmire made his appearance on Nov 28 and Rep Clemment J. Zablocki made his on Dec 6.

Seventy-five men of the BG went on Christmas leave Dec 20. They returned Jan 4 for duty. The men remaining were formed into two training companies called Tom and Jerry.

A party for BG personnels' children was held in Combat Support Company's mess hall.

Brig Gen Dunlap visited the BG area on Dec 27 and Maj Gen Smith made an appearance on Jan 3.

The BG went on a FTX operation called Big Pine Feb 2-Feb 4.

We became officially STRAC as of the 23 of February.

Sgt Maj Royal Schaal returned Feb 28 from a ten day official tour of Germany.

Our BG ATT was held Mar 26 to Mar 30.

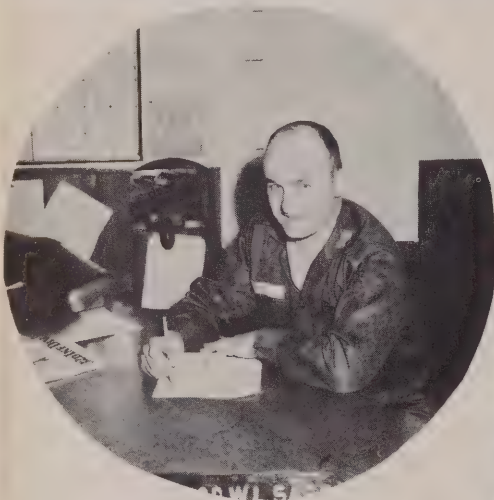

The BG went through an eight day, April 10-17, operation at the Yakima Firing Center. During this time Companies C and D and various individuals from A and B prepared and were sent to Hunter Liggett Military Reservation in California, to work with the 1st Experimental Regiment which is controlled by the Department of the Army.

Many members of the BG attended the World's Fair on Wisconsin Day, April 23.

From May 8-23, the BG took part in the operation Mesa Drive at the Yakima Firing Center. During the week of June 10, Companies C and D returned from California.

"Big Year for 'Big One'"

The 1st Battle Group, 128th Infantry, affectionately known as the "Big One" of the 32d Division, arrived on active duty from West Central Wisconsin in late October 1961. The men of the "Big One" arrived from the communities of Chippewa Falls (Combat Support Co), Menomonie (Company A), Hudson-New Richmond (Company B), Arcadia (Company C), Rice Lake (Company D), Neillsville (Company E), and from Eau Claire (Headquarters Company).

Immediately upon arrival the approximately 1,000 officers and men of the battle group were reinforced by the arrival of about 400 Army Reservists (fillers) from throughout the state of Wisconsin and the whole nation. These 1,400 men began intensive training that would make them all "combat-ready" by mid-February 1962.

Marchings, physical training, military discipline and individual weapon training were the first orders of business. After each man became familiar with his particular assignment the men then drilled as teams, squads, platoons, companies, and finally as a whole combat unit, the 1/128.

Unit training was finally climaxed by a battle group Army Training Test in early April 1962. By this time the 32d Division and the "Big One" were designated as STRAC and were prepared to go anywhere, at any time, at a moment's notice.

The battle group ATT's took place on the sprawling acreage of Fort Lewis in dismal weather for five days and nights. Each company maneuvered, attacked and withdrew in a war against aggressor forces who harrassed with machine gun, mortar and artillery fire as well as aerial bombardment and tank offensives.

The "Big One" stood strong and passed the ATT's with fine spirits and high scores. Headquarters Company scored the highest of any of the Division's headquarters companies.

After the ATT's, the battle group, led by Col William G. Kastner of Shell Lake, Wis., was chosen by the Department of the Army to undergo counter-guerrilla training.

This training was developed to allow the battle group to "function in any climate, under any condition in any locale in the world," according to Lt Col Harold A. Alwin of Reedsburg, Wis., the battle group executive officer.

Counter-guerrilla training was begun with a quick physical toughening schedule that included countless hours of exercise, physical training, 15-mile road marches with full field pack and weapon, hand-to-hand combat techniques, use of the bayonet and small arms, demolitions and explosives, hill climbing and cliff scaling as well as fording of rivers and swift streams with rope bridges.

To augment this new "first" in the Army's active duty forces, the battle group adopted a beret made by cutting the bill on the field cap. In addition, a crest with the initials "C-G" was designed by the battle group artist Lawrence Rosenblatt, and adopted for the unit's publications. The abbreviation is for counter-guerrilla.

On the individual level, the 1/128 provided the Post Soldier of the Month in April, making it the third win in a row for the Red Arrow Division. This outstanding member of the "Big One" was Sp/4 Denis Hecht of San Francisco, Calif., and Headquarters Company Engineering Platoon.

The training and effectiveness of this famed Red Arrow battle group was tested in Exercise Mesa Drive, staged at the Yakima Firing Center desert site about 120 miles southeast of Fort Lewis.

In preparation for this exercise, men of the battle group participated in Operation Robin Hood Force on the steep, snow-filled slopes of 14,000-foot Mt. Rainier. During this exercise, the men put into practice for the first time the training they received during the previous months at the Fort in counter-guerrilla operations.

They received supplies from the air, by small plane and helicopter, carried most of their equipment with them for subsistence and fighting while using vehicles at a minimum.

Battle Group Streamers being returned to the 1/128.

The men scaled high cliffs, forded swift streams of melted snow, slept in snow from six inches to 10 feet deep, and learned to effectively use individual survival techniques.

At Mesa Drive, these well-seasoned troops acted as counter-guerrilla forces against aggressor guerrilla units, while serving as friendly forces to the 4th's "Fire Brigade".

Culmination of all this preliminary and varied training was Exercise Sherwood Forest, held in the Rain Forest of the Olympic Mountains in northwestern Washington.

During this 11-day exercise, Robin Hood forces assumed the role of friendly troops while 202 volunteers from throughout the 32d Division — along with a unit of Special Forces personnel from Ft. Bragg, N. C. — acted as aggressor guerrillas.

The "Big One" assignment was to locate and destroy the bands of guerrilla forces within the problem area.

The active period of the men of the "Big One" closed with the official separation on August 1, 1962. During the period from October 1961 until August 1962, these men became a strong and efficient battle group that is an integral fighting force within the 32d Division.

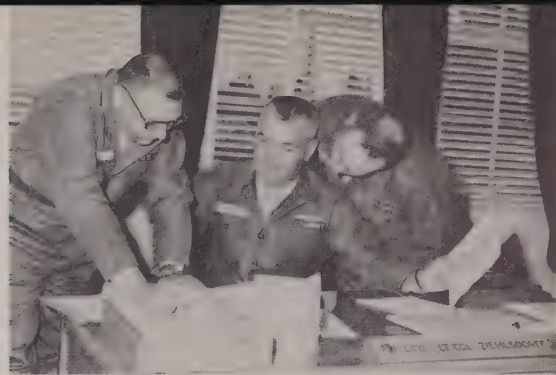

The battle group is a force that will greatly enhance the military might and potential of America's fighting forces in this country and around the world.

2d BATTLE GROUP
128th INFANTRY

COL JOSEPH M. STEHLING
Commanding Officer

Col Joseph M. Stehling, of Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, was the strategic brains of the 2d Battle Group during the bulk of its training at Fort Lewis.

The 48-year-old colonel is a seasoned combat veteran. During World War II he fought in every major battle that the 32d Division participated in in the Pacific. He saw action on Buna, Saidor, Aitope, Leyte and Luzon and was awarded a silver star and a purple heart.

Col Stehling joined the 32d Division as an enlisted man in 1932, was commissioned in 1940 and rose to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel by the end of the war. He was promoted to colonel in 1959. He was in command of the 2d Battle Group during the Mesa Drive Exercise in May, at the Yakima Firing Center, and took command of the 32d Division for a short time near the end of the problem.

In civilian life, Col Stehling is vice president for production at Kirsh Foundry, in Beaver Dam, Wisconsin. He is married and has six children. His oldest son, who is 24, graduated from West Point in 1960, and is an officer with the Fourth Division.

A BUSY LIFE, A VITAL JOB

Staff meeting

The 2d Battle Group, 128th Infantry, has been second to none during the months of training at Fort Lewis.

The first unit to arrive at Fort Lewis, the 2d Battle Group has posted a record of firsts in many fields. On October 26, 1961, the Battle Group arrived at the Fort. Reservists, who were to become part of the Battle Group, began to arrive at the end of the month.

The first hectic months of training saw the 2d Battle Group leading the way. We were the first to take platoon and company level Army Training Tests in December.

During the past months of training, the men of the Battle Group have taken top awards in marksmanship, athletics and training. The 2d Battle Group's rifle team led all 32d Division contenders in the Infantry Trophy Team Match on Post in January. The team also took fifth, behind three 4th Division teams and one 32d Division team, in the Commanding General's Trophy Team match the same month.

Two sharpshooting sergeants from the Battle Group gave the Army and Marines a lesson in marksmanship by taking top honors in the All Service M-1 matches in late February. Platoon Sgt James Baird, of Co C, and Sgt E-5 Joseph E. Vig, of Co D, teamed up to take first place in the matches at Camp Matthews Marine Post, near San Diego, California.

A two-man team from Co C took first place in a Post-wide automatic rifle match in mid-March. They were PFC Harry Lux and PFC Gerald Otten. They outshot teams from both the 4th and 32d Divisions.

In the field of athletics, the Battle Group has been well represented. A leading sports personality, big 2d Lt John Gordy, guard for the Detroit Lions professional football team, is an officer in Co D. Ron "Sobie" Sobieszczyk, guard for the Chicago Majors professional basketball team. Gordy was an All American at the University of Tennessee in 1957. Sobie played for the New York Knickerbockers before joining the Chicago team. Two amateur boxers, in the Battle Group, competed in local and Army tournaments. They were light heavyweight PFC Robert Patterson, of Co B, New England and First Army Middleweight Champion in 1958, and PFC Frank Carter, of Headquarters Co., middleweight champion at the St. Louis Golden Gloves Tournament in 1959.

The Battle Group has had a string of top-ranking graduates from the Noncommissioned Officers Academy on Post. Sgt Lowel E. Fjalstad, of Co D, ranked as the high man in the January graduating class; Sgt Richard M. Greenlee, of Co C, and Sgt Richard Wilhoit, of Co E, ranked second and fifth in the graduating class on March 3.

Since its activation, the Battle Group has participated in one 10-day training exercise, during March and April at the Yakima Firing Center. It will participate in the Mesa Drive Exercise, May 7 to 21, at the Firing Center.

32d INFANTRY DIVISION ARTILLERY

FRANCIS FREDERICK SCHWEINLER
Brigadier General
Commanding General,
Division Artillery

General Schweinler was born in Neillsville, Wisconsin on 10 August 1906. He graduated from Neillsville High School in 1925 and immediately entered into the newspaper business. Except for the period covering the Second World War he remained active in this business until he sold his two newspapers in April 1961.

He began his military career when he enlisted in the Wisconsin National Guard in January 1924, and served continuously and was promoted through all non-commissioned officer ranks until he accepted a commission as 2d Lieutenant in the Officers Reserve Corps in January 1931.

General Schweinler was promoted to 1st Lieutenant in January 1936 and to Captain in April 1939. In 1940 he was ordered to active duty and graduated from the Infantry School at Fort Benning, Georgia. He served as Director of the Wausau, Wisconsin Military District following graduation, until he was ordered to the Tank Destroyer Center at Camp Hood, Texas in February 1942.

At Camp Hood he was assigned as Deputy Executive at the Pioneer Department, of that school. In May 1943 General Schweinler activated the 672d Tank Destroyer Battalion and served as its commanding officer until March 1944, when he took command of the 142d Battalion TDRTC, at Camp Hood, Texas. In June 1944 he was assigned as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, Headquarters Replacement and School Command at Birmingham, Alabama. After serving in this capacity for approximately five months the General moved to Camp Shelby, Mississippi, this time to command the 806th TD Battalion. After serving at Shelby for a few months, General Schweinler took the 806th to the Philippines.

Released from Active Duty in March 1946, he was assigned as Battalion Commander, 312th Tank Battalion, Officer Reserve Corps. In July 1949 he was commissioned a Lieutenant Colonel in the Wisconsin National Guard and assigned as Commanding Officer of the 120th Field Artillery Battalion. In October 1956 he was assigned as Executive Officer, Division Artillery, 32d Infantry Division and in November of that year was promoted to Colonel.

Upon reorganization of the Wisconsin National Guard in February 1959 he was assigned as Commanding Officer, 1st Battle Group, 127th Infantry and served in this capacity until 2 July 1960 when he was appointed as Assistant Division Commander, 32d Infantry Division, Wisconsin National Guard. Effective 16 November 1960 he was federally recognized as a Brigadier General. On August 1st, 1961, he was appointed as the Commanding General, 32d Infantry Division Artillery.

On 15 October 1961 he was again ordered to Active Duty as Commanding General, 32d Infantry Division Artillery, 32d Infantry Division at Fort Lewis, Washington.

"Let the gunners alone, they're an obstinate lot."

Napoleon Bonaparte's comment about 18th Century cannoners could be applied to 32d Division Artillerymen, whose stubborn perseverance and pride became well known in the Division during active duty time at Fort Lewis.

Two thousand artillerymen, led by a hard-driving commander, Brig. Gen. Francis F. Schweinler, took a back seat to no one.

Among proud memories of their tour—

The 3rd Rocket Howitzer Battalion, 121st Artillery, made history on Feb. 7, 1961, by launching the first Honest John rocket to be fired by a National Guard unit on active duty. A total of four H-J rockets were fired during this tour of duty.

Howitzer batteries surprised veteran Regular Army officers by hitting peak accuracy and efficiency within weeks after leaving civilian life.

The 1st Howitzer Battalions of the 120th and 121st Artilleries trained with the first self-propelled pieces in 32d annals.

The 2d Howitzer Battalion, 121st Artillery, hosted thousands of competitors in the 1962 6th Army Rifle matches.

The Artillery was the first major 32d unit to stage a practice alert after the Division was named to the Strategic Army Corps.

The artillery, thanks to contributions from component units, sponsored a special three-color edition of the Red Arrow, biweekly Division news magazine . . . another first.

The artillery's basketball team received acclaim for winning the Fort Lewis major unit basketball crown, beating a horde of other Army teams. The Division Artillery also won the Ft. Lewis Post Track meet, golf team championship and Post team swimming championship.

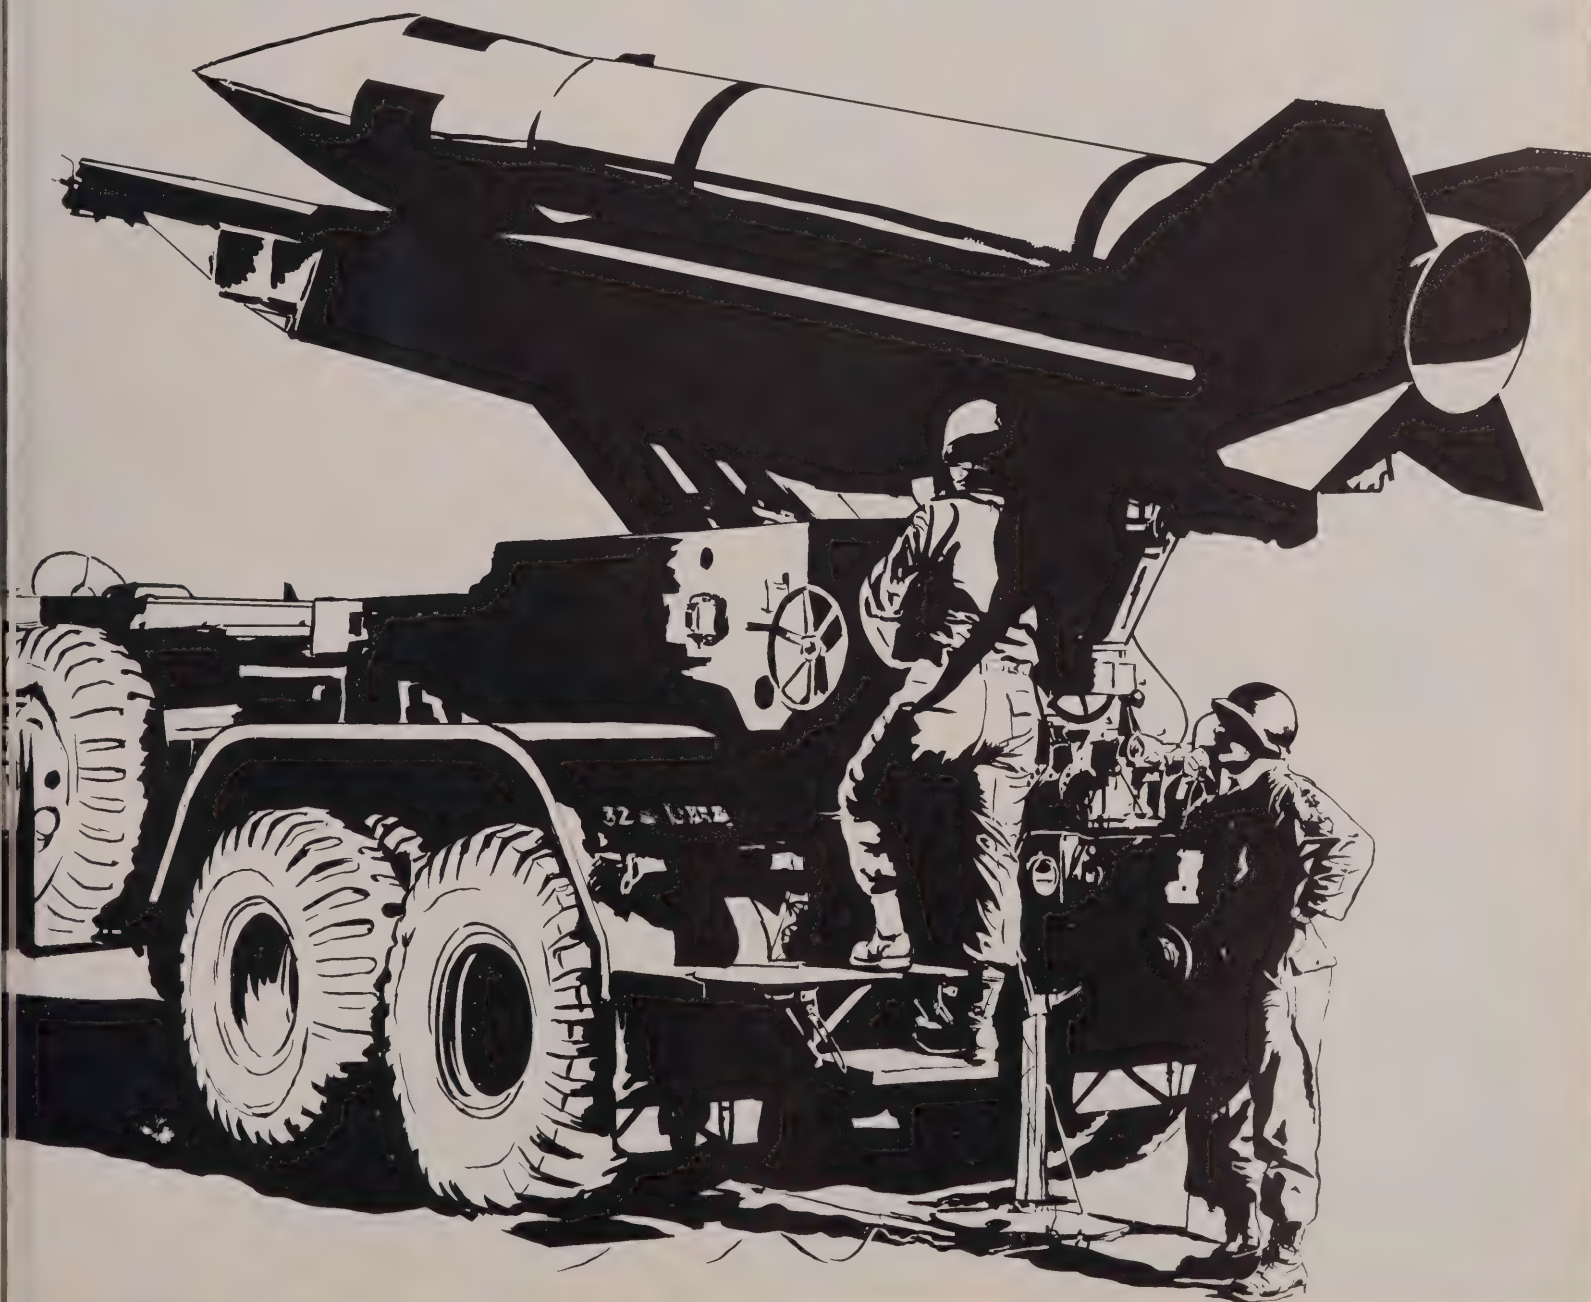

Artillerymen set a post blood bank record by donating 700 pints, breaking the previous weekly record of 500 set by a 6th Army outfit.

And throughout their tour, artillerymen were in the midst of every Division maneuver, from Army Training Tests to major exercises like Bristle Cone and Mesa Drive.

Pride in being "artillerymen" and an intense "esprit de corps" drove them to excel in all things they faced.

Concerning Red Arrow Artillery, Napoleon might have said:

"Let the gunners alone. They are an obstinate lot who let nothing interfere with their mission. They can be counted on."

If Army Training Tests mean what they're supposed to, then Battery A of 2d Howitzer Battalion, 120th Artillery, is about the sharpest battery in the 32d Division. And the rest of the battalion isn't bad either.

Toward the end of the 16-week intensified combat training period, ATTs were administered by teams from Sixty Army Headquarters to test their state of combat readiness.

Battery A passed the test January 18 with the highest score attained by any battery in Divarty. Battery B also did well and the entire battalion, tested as an integral unit February 7, scored the second highest rating in Divarty, being shaded by a fraction by another battalion for top honors.

The battalion, comprised of two units from Wisconsin Rapids—Headquarters Battery and Battery B, and one unit from Waupaca, Battery A, made the movement to Fort Lewis by rail when the Division was activated last October.

First three weeks was devoted to housekeeping, personnel and records processing. Thereafter, a period of 16 weeks was spent in an intensified combat training program with the objective of fielding a "combat-ready division at the end of that period should the need arise."

After the intensified combat training ended, the 2/120 entered the maneuver phase of training. First exercise, Exercise Bristle Cone, was to test the ability of a task force comprised of infantry, with supporting armor, artillery and other combat and logistical units to operate in desert and mountainous terrain.

This battalion was selected as artillery support for the operation, staged at Fort Irwin, Calif., March 6-13.

After completion of the Mojave Desert maneuvers, the entire battalion supported Sixth Army Rifle Matches staged here April 2-15.

To support a Red Arrow battle group specially trained in counter-insurgency warfare, Battery A was selected from the 2/120. The battery provided 105 mm artillery for Task Force Robin Hood, as the battle group, the 1/128, was called.

Elements of Headquarters Battery, forward observer, liaison and survey sections also were part of the task force which began training in the foothills of Mount Rainier late in April.

Final maneuver of the battalion was Exercise Sherwood Forest, staged in the rain forest of the Olympic Peninsula, with the task force assigned the mission of destroying a band of 200 guerrillas operating in the area.

This final field exercise took place June 18-29.

July was devoted to out-processing for release from active duty, with some training in small-arms firing and service practice. Advance parties left Fort Lewis for home stations July 25.

The main body left August 2 and all were released from active duty August 10. A small rear detachment of about 18 men left Fort Lewis August 10 and were released August 16.

Lieutenant Colonel
Commanding Officer

"Make the best better" is the motto of the 121st Artillery, 1st Howitzer Battalion, and it presents a constant challenge to the men who serve it. But how the motto came about tells the story too.

On 12 February 1962, in a test designed to evaluate the ability of the battalion and determine the proficiency of the unit in performance of its assigned mission, the 1/121 attained the highest score in the 32nd Division Artillery. This achievement sparked the motto.

A training highlight occurred at the Yakima Firing Center when the battalion fired 837 rounds of artillery ammunition in support of an infantry battle group—the 3d Battle Group, 127th Infantry—during Operation Readiness.

During three days of the exercise the battalion supported tactical infantry maneuvers. A tactical march to contact an imaginary enemy, with all elements of the task force taking part, was accomplished during the seven day exercise, conducted in April.

As a culmination of the year's training, the 1/121 participated along with Wisconsin's entire Red Arrow Division in Exercise Mesa Drive, also staged at the Yakima Firing Center near Yakima, Wash.

The battalion was rated "excellent" by the problem's controllers for its conduct and overall performance. Combat conditions were simulated with all but live ammunition during the two-week exercise, which pitted the 32d against elements of the 4th Division.

Also participating were Sixth Army, 9th and 12th Air Forces, and various other units from throughout the U.S.

Administration of Sixth Army Rifle Matches and a large scale war game, Exercise Mesa Drive, highlighted the tour of duty at Fort Lewis for men of the 2d Howitzer Battalion, 121st Artillery.

The troops supported the Sixth Army and North Pacific Rifle Matches from March 1 to April 20, receiving "high praise for their administration and coordination of the matches."

At Mesa Drive, two-week May exercise which involved the entire Red Arrow Division, artillerymen such as the 2/121 performed a key role. Though they usually missed front-line action because of the nature of their mission, the artillerymen had to stay alert because of aggressor guerrilla action in the rear positions.

The artillery outfit began active duty with 22 officers, 3 warrant officers and 232 enlisted men. During the first and second months here, some 80 USAR personnel filled the remaining TO&E positions and contributed greatly to functioning of the battalion.

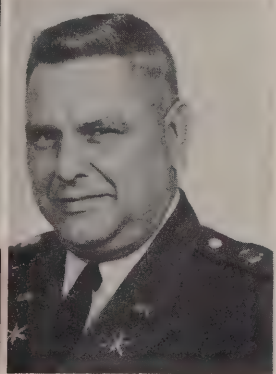

The battalion has units from Marshfield, Pittsville, Stratford, Wausau, Medford and Abbotsford, Wis.

The first months of training were trying ones for the uprooted artillerymen as they adjusted to full-time army life. The transition was essentially smooth, however.

Three commanders led the battalion during the Fort Lewis tour, starting with Lt Col James E. Bliss, from Eau Claire, Wis. Bliss was transferred and replaced by Lt Col Raymond J. Dehlinger on December 1. Major Lyle G. Reinhard assumed command of the battalion on June 15, after Dehlinger also was transferred to other duty.

The battalion was again given a change in command personnel as Major Reinhard was transferred and Major John G. Sullivan given command of the 2/121, shortly after Reinhard assumed command.

The battalion departed from home stations for Fort Lewis October 26 and arrived at Fort Lewis October 28, 1961. The advance detachment had offices, mess halls, supply rooms and barracks ready for the main body of men.

The Red Arrow Division's Sunday punch is the "Honest John" rocket. And men of the 3d Rocket Howitzer Battalion, 121st Artillery, are responsible for the big blow.

The battalion's rocket outfit, Battery B, fired four Honest Johns since coming to Fort Lewis. The 5,900 pound rockets were fired February 7, for the first time in 32d Division annals, February 24, for interested civilians and military observers, May 21, at completion of Exercise Mesa Drive at the Yakima Firing Center, and July 5, for Reserve units participating in their annual summer camp here.

The entire battalion, commanded by Lt Col William K. Brown, carried out intensified training from October 15 to February 19, then participated in operational readiness training — with emphasis on nuclear capability — for the remainder of active duty time here.

Training in nuclear weapons assembly started in January. Five officers and 18 enlisted men received formal school training, attending a special class on nuclear weapons assembly at Fort Sill, Okla., January 25-30.

Battery A completed their eight-inch Army Training Test February 5, while Battery B completed their Honest John Army Training Test February 6, 1962.

When fired for training, the 27-foot long rockets speed at supersonic speed to an impact area some 10 miles away. They carry dummy loads of flash-smoke for demonstration purposes, but could just as easily carry a high explosive, nuclear or chemical warhead.

Battery B participated in Operation Bristle Cone at Fort Irvin, Calif., March 7-13, and the entire battalion participated in Exercise Mesa Drive at the Yakima Center, May 7-21.

The battalion hosted the 4th Rocket Howitzer Battalion, 11th Artillery, 96th Infantry Division (USAR), and Battery B, 4th Rocket Howitzer Battalion, 21st Artillery, 63rd Infantry Division (USAR) for their annual ANACDUTRA (summer camp) here from June 23 to July 7.

These units were supervised in the firing of another Honest John rocket on July 5 — a little Independence Day fireworks just one day late.

"BERLIN" And all military units of the United States Army respond. As a part of the build up for this crisis and the world situation, the 32nd Division was called to active duty and this is one of its Artillery Battalions.

STAFF: Lt Col Goodwin Johnston—CO; Maj Charles Haubrich—Exec; Maj John S. Pratt—S-3; Capt Robert Greening—S-2; Capt Wayne Van Lone—S-4.

Btry CO's: Capt Maynard R. Dulak—Hq Btry; Capt Roger C. Thornberg—A Btry; Capt Thomas V. Wallig—B Btry.

15 Oct. 61, exactly 21 years after the call up for world war II. The 32nd Infantry Division again became part of active Army. The units arrived at Fort Lewis Washington completely by 28 Oct. 61. Basic combat and all unit training was begun immediately upon arrival at Fort Lewis. Maj Charles Haubrich was transferred and replaced by Maj Robert O. Wildish as executive officer. The unqualified officers were sent to Fort Sill for branch qualifications.

On 15 Nov. 62, a Btry 2/126 fired the first artillery round of Div Arty and of 32d Inf Division at Fort Lewis. Sgt Cundari of Hqs Btry had first target hit as FWD OBS for B Btry. On 17 Nov. 61, Bn conducted the first tactical OP of 32d Inf Division. On 20 Dec. 61, Capt Roger C. Thornberg was transferred to this battalion and Capt William Kurth transferred out. Capt Thornberg became A Btry CO. On 19 Jan. 62, Both A and B Btry passed their Battery tests and the Battalion moved to Battalion training Phase. The battalion gave support to 3/127 Infantry and continue its string of firsts by being first battalion to fire live fire over heads of Infantry personnel. Also the battalion became the first to fire using an automatic mechanical computer system to solve the gunnery problem, since activation of 32d Infantry Division. This was on 30 March 62. The battalion also supported the 6th U.S. Army rifle matches from 9 April 62 to 22 April 62. Finally after several postponements, the battalion finally took their battalion test on 25 April 1962, attaining a score of 87% and a commendation from the 4th Division Artillery, who conducted the test. At present, the battalion is completing its first category V preparations.

While the present 32d Infantry Division Band was created in 1947 as the successor to the pre-World War II regimental and artillery bands of the division, its present control headquarters, the 32d Division Trains is an entirely new headquarters within the division, having resulted from the reorganization of the division in 1959 to meet the needs of the nuclear battlefield. The function of the Trains Headquarters is to control the tactical operations and training of the division's logistical elements. The present subordinate units of Trains are the 32d Administration Company, 32d Quartermaster Company, 135th Medical Battalion, 232d Transportation Battalion, 732d Ordnance Battalion and the 32d Infantry Division Band.

Despite the brevity of its existence, Trains Headquarters has its own interesting highlights—particularly in the area of personnel. When the Headquarters was activated at Madison in February 1959, Colonel Carlisle P. Runge, a University of Wisconsin law professor, was made Trains Commander. When Colonel Runge was appointed Assistant Secretary of Defense (Manpower) by President Kennedy in 1960, he was succeeded by Colonel Donald J. Mackie. Onetime commanding officer of the division's combat engineer battalion, Colonel Mackie is an experienced military leader, having commanded a combat engineer unit throughout four campaigns in the European Theatre during World War II.

The present staff reflects broad military experience and skills. Lieutenant Colonel Thomas C. Helgeson, the Trains Executive Officer, is a veteran paratrooper and saw action with the 82d Airborne Division in World War II and the 187th Regimental Combat Team in the Korean Conflict. His several decorations include the Silver Star, Netherlands Lanyard, and Belgian Fourragere. The Trains Operations Officer, Major Arthur J. Krueck, received a battlefield commission in Europe in World War II and the Intelligence Officer, Major W. Scott Van Alstyne is also a World War II veteran having served several campaigns in the Asiatic Pacific Theatre.

"Soldier of the Month"—Col D. J. Mackie offers congratulations and three-day pass to winner.

Administration Co

The 32d Administration Company, 32d Infantry Division, was organized through ROCID on 15 February 1959. The unit consists of eight sections . . . six special staff sections, a replacement section and a company headquarters section.

The special staff sections are the Adjutant General's, Inspector General's, the Staff Judge Advocate, Finance, Personnel and Special Services. These sections were formerly part of the Headquarters, 32d Infantry Division.

The Administration Company is the paper work headquarters of the 32d Division, and is tactically part of 32d Infantry Division Trains, commanded by Colonel Donald J. Mackie.

The original Admin Company commanding officer was First Lieutenant John J. Zvara. Lieutenant Zvara held this position until 12 September, 1960, when he resigned. Following the resignation of Zvara, the present commanding officer, Captain Walter W. Dusold, assumed command.

The Administration Company has 20 officers and warrant officers, and five enlisted men who are veterans of World War II or Korea. In addition, the unit has within its roster of personnel, six members who were members of the 32d Division in 1940 when it was recalled to active duty prior to World War II.

When the 32d was again called to active duty on 15 October, 1961, the Inspector General's section had the unique honor of having 100 percent of its personnel who also were members of the division when called in 1940. These individuals are Lieutenant Colonel Herbert L. Krueger, Major Frank L. Nikolay and Sergeant First Class Vernon C. Zahrte.

The unit's home station is Milwaukee, Wisconsin. The motto of the 32d Administration Company could be most appropriately stated as, "Don't do it tomorrow—We did it last night."

Off to an emergency!

135th Medical Battalion was alerted for Active Duty on or about 19 September 1962. It performed medical service and gave physicals to personnel in the Milwaukee-Racine area between 1 October and 17 October.

Moving to Fort Lewis, Washington by rail and private auto, it has since done field training. One platoon each from Company A and Company B went to Fort Irwin for Operation Bristle Cone.

The Battalion moved to Yakima Firing Range for Exercise Mesa Drive where it had an opportunity to test its evacuation capability and prove its battle group support.

Col Frank Kloiber, CO, and Maj Richard Hanson, Ass't Div Trans Off, plan training mission for the 232d

Keeping the 32d Infantry Division rolling and on the move, was the objective facing the 232d Transportation Battalion, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Frank J. Kloiber, when it arrived at Fort Lewis, Wash., in October, 1961.

The length of this mission was not known at the beginning, but it was destined to carry the 32d through a training period that would groom the Red Arrowmen into a STRAC organization.

The four companies of the 232d were called upon to support the division during Operation Bristle Cone at Fort Irwin, California, Exercise Mesa Drive at Yakima Firing Center, Washington, and Operation Sherwood Forrest in the Olympian Rain Forrest in Washington. All three huge, complex maneuvers provided a mission to be completed by the transportation units, and the men fulfilled that mission in an outstanding manner.

The companies, Headquarters, A Company, B Company and C Company, have as their Wisconsin homestations, Oak Creek, Madison, Portage and Berlin, respectively. The battalion is the largest within the 32d Division Trains Command, having a total of 29 officers and warrant officers, and 429 enlisted men in its ranks.

Company A is commanded by Captain Patrick M. Roach. It is classified as a truck company. The unit has the unique honor of having as its first sergeant, a soldier who has 28 years of military service—all of which have been with A Company. The sergeant, Robert von Hoersten, was with the company during World War II.

Headquarters Company has within its operation, the Division Transportation Section of the Battalion. The section played the major role of deprocessing the 32d in July and early August, 1962. It coordinated and arranged for the movements home of equipment, and also the personnel, their dependents and household goods. Headquarters Company is commanded by Capt Robert J. Luxem.

Companies B and C are both designated as armored personnel carrier units and were given their biggest test in rugged terrain during the maneuvers during the 32d Division's 10 months of active duty. The companies, commanded by 1st Lt Arthur G. Witalison and Capt Karel A. Grimm, provided certain combat elements of the 127th and 128th Infantry with protected tactical mobility.

Aviation Co

From evacuation to photography, the 32d Aviation Company provides Wisconsin's Red Arrow Division with vital and varied support in conducting its combat operations.

By dialing Air support, commanders know they can have aerial observation and artillery surveys, airlift of personnel, communication relay, logistical support, and support for tactical operations almost on call.

Though the flexibility and versatility of army aviation prevents listing all of its possible missions, the specific training the 32d Aviation Company received for supporting the division included all of the above and then some.

The unit is comprised of an aviation section commanded by Lt Col Sarko and his staff, whose duties are to maintain liaison with aviation staff sections of higher and lower command levels, and with adjacent units.

The staff section assists the general and special staff sections in preparation of army aviation estimates, plans, orders and reports. The staff is also responsible for supervising the unit training for effective utilization.

The company supported the division in command post and field training exercises, army training tests, and division maneuvers such as Operation Bristle Cone, Exercise Mesa Drive and Exercise Sherwood Forest.

During the first four months of the year, the aviation company flew support missions for the battle groups which consisted of aerial photography, message drops and pick-ups, reconnaissance, propaganda leaflet drops and ferrying commanders, personnel and equipment.

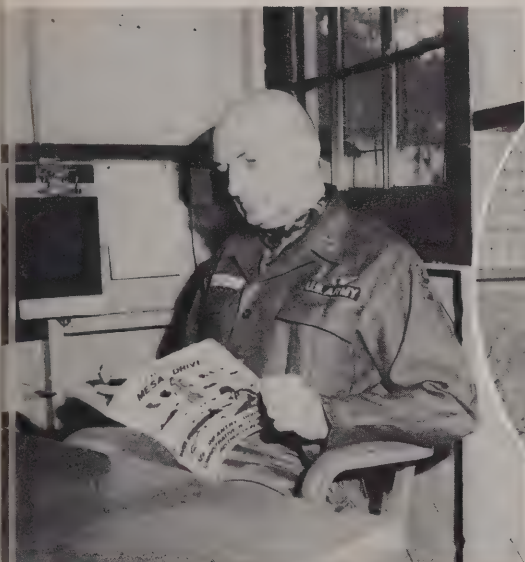

Elements of the 32d Aviation Company participated in Operation Bristle Cone March 7-13 by flying reconnaissance missions and ferrying of equipment, and other assignments.

During Exercise Mesa Drive May 7-21, general and direct support platoons supported artillery and brigade headquarters, in addition to ferrying equipment and men. The aerial surveillance platoon flew photo and visual recons. At the offensive stage the platoon had three planes in the air at all times.

The general support platoon helped furnish more planes and pilots to carry out other missions. Superior ratings were awarded by controller personnel to maintenance personnel from the service platoon and 432d Detachment.

The services of the 32d Aviation Company were again requested for Exercise Sherwood Forest, first counter-guerrilla operation of its type ever staged by the Army.

The general support platoon was ordered to support the exercise by flying reconnaissance missions and ferrying personnel and equipment. The aerial surveillance platoon photographed the operations area, taking a total of 180 photographs during the exercise in the Olympic National Forest.
